A PIN is a secret, strictly confidential, identification number that the Bank assigns and which is known exclusively to card holders. It serves to identify the card holder during transactions for which the identification with PIN is required.

It is in the interest of the card holder to keep the PIN secret, in order to protect from possible abuse. Therefore, it is not allowed to write the PIN, i.e. make it available to other persons in any way. The card holder bears all responsibility if he unconscionably handles the PIN – i.e. the card. In that case, the Bank is relieved of any liability.

Each issued card with the name of the Customer reads in the name and surname of the user; it is non-transferable and it is issued with a deadline printed on the card itself. After the expiration of this period, the card is automatically reissued.

The decision on the issuance of the card and the amount of the approved spending limit at the level of LE is made by the Bank, without the obligation to explain its decision to the Customer.

In case of transactions that condition the identification of the card holder by his signature, the card holder is obliged to sign the transaction certificate in the same way as he signed the card. He must retain one copy of the transaction certificate for his records.

For transactions that condition pin identification, the card holder is identified through the PIN.

The card holder is obliged to take all measures in order not to make the PIN available to third parties, taking care that no written trace of the PIN is connected with the card he uses. For security reasons, the card holder is obliged to immediately destroy the received notification of the PIN.

Otherwise, it will be considered that the card holder/Customer agrees with the statement.

The Bank does not assume any responsibility for goods and services purchased by the card, the validity of the information provided or the rejection of the card by the point of sale.
